NURTURING YOUNG ARTISTS PROJECT

MUSIC

REGION 12 • K-5

Monday-Friday, January 8-12

Booth Free School | Burnham School | Washington Primary School

We are all inherently creative. But somehow, in the process of growing in our world, the artist in each of us isn't always nurtured. ASAP!'s Nurturing Young Artists Music Project celebrates every child as an artist. Primary school children are given the opportunity to work with professional artists who are passionate about creativity and experiential learning. Children will be supported in their creative endeavors as they explore and develop their artistic process. Teaching artists and composers Jessica Rudman and Luke Nelson will work with children and Region 12 elementary music teachers to compose a piece or pieces of music. The innate collaborative nature of this work encourages students to consider the overarching concept that a diversity of minds, ideas and hands allows the creation of something unexpected and unique. The project will culminate in a performance, which will include a video documenting the process. Artwork and or stories created during the project will be included as part of the showing.
